

Dr. Mudasser Ahmed Khan is an Assistant professor in the Department of Plant Pathology, Sri Karan Narendra Agriculture University, Jobner Jaipur (Rajasthan) India. He has more than 7 year of teaching and research experiences in the field Crop protection and Mushroom cultivation. Dr. Khan is expert and keen person for mushroom cultivation serving to the farmer community from the very long time. Dr. Khan has delivered more the 50 lectures to the farming community and regularly attached with the state agriculture department to solve the farmer's major problems. He was master trainer in the state Agri. Department particularly to his field. Dr. Khan is ground worker and had been working with collaboration project with ARS as well as with ICAR institute. Dr. Khan has also published many research papers particularly to his field in various national and international reputed journals. Dr. Khan personally believe that considering the present situation and facts, problems this novel agriculture innovation can play significant role to overcome such health and employment issues simultaneously manage the waste in suitable way.